

Business Restructuring and Insolvency

Not every journey is predictable. Unwanted surprises. Reduced liquidity. Changing global markets.

These factors can force borrowers and creditors to re-evaluate their positions. It can also force companies to reorganize themselves globally. A comprehensive restructuring plan will help avoid a freefall insolvency. A strong contingency plan to fall back on will provide protection if a consensual solution isn't possible.

Today's cross-border restructuring and insolvency work calls for lawyers skilled in providing bold and commercial solutions. They also need sharp technical skills to be able to guide clients through the complexities of this market. We have those skills.

Our restructuring and insolvency lawyers advise all stakeholders in restructuring and insolvency cases. From our global platform, we provide pragmatic, business-focused advice to creditors, multinational companies, and insolvency administrators. We also advise pension trustees, governmental and quasi-governmental bodies, and stressed financial institutions.

We understand the legal, political, and business landscapes involved when a company gets into financial difficulties. And we have a strong track record of providing innovative solutions.

Over-leveraged balance sheets are an issue for creditors as well as borrowers. We have acted on some of the largest loan
